“ I saw a quote today that made me think of you. It said something like " loyal friends will defend you in a room you're not in." It made me remember the time I heard someone say you were not a good person , and I sat quietly by without trying to correct the statement. Yes, the John I knew had flaws, but who doesn't have flaws. The John I knew also showed love and compassion for others. You would go out of your way to help people. All a family member or friend had to do was call and ask you to come help because something needed to be fixed, and as soon as you got a chance you were there trying to fix it.i saw you stop and help many people who were having car problems, I saw you take care of your mom and my aunt - and I didn't even ask you took. You' would just call and say "I took your aunt some dinner, if you want some when you get off , stop and pick some up." Or "The temperature is dropping you need to cover your vents" and then tell not to worry about it cause you had all ready done it. And when Fred got sick, if he was too weak to get up or needed help with anything, he would just say, call John and you would come right away. Sir, I didn't say it then, but to me you were a good person, you showed love for people and I think your actions of helping those you could, showed love for your fellow man and for that reason to me, John Wright, you showed yourself to be a good person. I'm glad I had the opportunity to know the "good" side of you. Anyway, like I said, the quote made me think of you. Clearly, you were a much better friend to me than I was to you. RIP.
